2013 WINDERLEA PINOT NOIR

TASTING NOTES

This lush, concentrated Pinot noir exhibits aromas of molasses and caramelized sugar, a balance of rich sweetness with a firm texture and mouth filling spice, blueberry, and other dark fruits. It would pair wonderfully with a variety of game and poultry dishes.

WINEMAKER'S THOUGHTS

Saturated pomegranate juice and a field of violets greet me in the glass. These aromas carry through onto the palate and are complimented by the warm flavors of baking spice and vanilla bean. This wine is effusive, textured, and sumptuous yet still elegant in its bearing—the filigreed tannins in the finish rein in the wine and bring balance. The extra years in bottle have served it well.

ASSISTANT WINEMAKER'S THOUGHTS

Ever walked into an old bookstore and taken a deep breath before exhaling audibly and declaring your intentions to move in? An oddly similar feeling overtakes me opening this wine nearly a half-score after bottling. Dusty leather and balsamic reduction, cumin and nutmeg, balsam and the suggestion of clove. I could jot down a compendium of descriptors but it would do an injustice to the whole. Rather ethereal, this one is to be experienced, not relayed. Make this the newest addition to your library from ours.
